

Adenauer Challenges Reds To Free 300,000 German POWs

Seeks Free Nation-Wide Elections

Bonn, Germany, (AP) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer declared yesterday that if the Russians really mean to make peace in Germany they should release 300,000 German prisoners of war still held and agree to free, nation-wide elections. "This means opening the iron-curtained Russian zone to inspection."

"Anything less," Adenauer said in a speech to a Christian Democratic party rally in Augsburg, "would be a false peace and a dangerous one for our nation. And I will not buy a momentary agreement."

This was Adenauer's first comment on the dramatic Communist announcements from Berlin four days ago that they were reversing their program of all-out Communization and adopting a theme that might pave the way for a four-power conference on the unification of this country, which has been divided for eight years.

These Red promises hit like a political atom bomb in West Germany. It was suspected the moves were dictated by the Kremlin with the aim of torpedoing pro-Western Chancellor Adenauer in this summer's elections and to sow enough confusion to prevent the rearming of West Germany in the projected European army.

Adenauer's words were echoed in Bonn by his minister for all-German affairs, Jacob Kaiser, who made a broadcast to the 18 million Germans in the Russian zone.

Deeds Not Words Theme Is Dangerous

(By the Associated Press) By constantly repeating the "deeds instead of words" theme with regard to negotiations with the Soviet Union, the United States and its allies may be preparing a pitfall for themselves.

A number of steps taken by Moscow can be interpreted as "deeds instead of words." Other steps to come can fall into the same category, and will, in all likelihood.

Each of these Kremlin moves tends to ease the suspicion of Moscow in the minds of West Europeans, many anxious to have their suspicions relieved. The cumulative effect of a procession of such deeds can tip the balance in Moscow's favor in the Russian's steady war of attrition against the non-Communist coalition.

There have been "deeds." Forceful moves have been made in Germany, for example, harsh Sovietization measures have been reversed in East Germany. Gestures have been made toward peace with the church.

There has been a new "deed" with regard to Turkey. The USSR has announced its abandonment of its claim to the Turkish regions of Kars and Ardahan.

The steps toward truce in Korea have been "deeds." The Soviet press and leaders repeatedly ask: Was it not Soviet initiative that brought about the negotiations?

THE UNITED NATIONS LOBBY (Mr. Burnham, author of the recently published "Containment or Liberation?", lectures regularly at the War College, the Naval War College, and the National War College.)

The largest auditorium in the plush United Nations headquarters is the General Assembly meeting hall. From its walls, two enormous mural paintings by the French artist, Fernand Leger, dominate the proceedings. Though these paintings are "abstract" in the modern manner, spectators have dubbed them "The Fried Eggs."

U. N. press agents have covered much paper with their descriptions of the Assembly Hall. None of them has thought it newsworthy to mention that Fernand Leger is a member of the French Communist Party.

He is not one of the eccentric artist-types who join the Party mostly to shock people. He is a trusted, long-time Communist, bitterly anti-American and thoroughly pro-Soviet.

Leger's "Fried Eggs" were donated to the U. N. by the American Association for the United Nations. This group is the principal unit of the Organized U. N. lobby.

Truce Job Officers Are Alerted For Work Defense Pact May Draw Opposition From Both Parties

FIREMEN FOUGHT UNDERCOVER FLAMES for two hours here early yesterday morning to keep fire from spreading through Scavo's Barber Shop and other frame buildings in the block on Main St. Flames caused heavy damage to the shop and cellar at 758 Main St. Origin of fire is not known.

Pre-Dawn Fire Threatens Large Section Of Business District In Two Hour Battle

Firemen successfully battled a threatening pre-dawn fire yesterday in the heart of Stroudsburg's business district.

For two hours the volunteer workers fought to confine the smoldering blaze to a cellar at 758 Main St. where it had begun. Located in the building, on the first floor, is a barber shop operated by Al Scavo. The second and third floors are used as residential quarters.

Discovery of the fire was made at about 3:40 a. m. by Mrs. Anna Zuehl, second-floor tenant in the building. Owner of the building is Mrs. Iva Seguire, 522 Main St.

Mrs. Zuehl awoke, she said, at about twenty minutes to four. A "coughing spell" had awakened her.

She reached for a light switch, pushed, and nothing happened. Then Mrs. Zuehl groped to the closed door between her bedroom and the apartment kitchen.

When she opened the door, her lungs filled with harsh, acrid smoke. Mrs. Zuehl made her way to the telephone table in the living room, toward the front of the building.

With each step, the smoke grew heavier, she said. The woman turned in a fire alarm to the telephone operator, then went back to the bedroom, grabbed her small box-style purse.

Clutching a chenille bathrobe about her body, Mrs. Zuehl left the building through the kitchen door, escaped to the ground by the back steps.

Fire trucks began arriving on the scene almost immediately. At 3:55 a. m. firemen were attempting to enter the upstairs portion of the house by way of the front door. Clouds of thick smoke poured from the door and open front windows on the second and third floor. Firemen quickly ran a hose through a front cellar window, began searching for the origin of the smoke. No flames were visible.

By 4:10 a second large hose had been run from the street through an arwayway between the adjoining Queenan Radio Shop and Biggs American Restaurant, to the rear of the barber shop.

Still no flames. Firemen began pumping water into the cellar. As the minutes clicked by, firemen pin-pointed the cause of the smoke. A faint, but unmistakable crackle became increasingly audible from the cellar.

Firemen entered the first floor of the building, found flames were beginning to eat through the floor of the barber shop.

Twice volunteers tried to gain access to the upper stories of the building through windows. Both times they were forced back by lung-clogging smoke and fumes.

Using an aerial ladder, three firemen climbed to the roof of the building; broke through outside wall-covering to determine whether flames had leaped up beams to the top floors.

In the rear of the building, the dull red glow of flames appeared for the first time in a small back room. Firemen ran a second and third hose to the rear of the building.

Working with swift, deliberate efficiency, the volunteer firefighters concentrated on preventing the fire from spreading to other areas of the building.

Potential danger to other buildings in the block—most of them frame structures—had to be checked and re-checked constantly. Shortly after 5 a. m. the major portion of the danger had been eliminated. At 5:30, the smoke began to clear away from the building's interior.

As the men continued their work on the inside, waitresses and cooks from the Colonial Diner across the street went to work lugging huge piles of hot coffee and plates of cookies to the sidewalk in front of the building, and later ham and eggs on the house.

By 6 a. m. everything was "under control." A Stroud township fire company truck arrived on the scene in response to a call from Stroudsburg Chief Millard Marsh. Stroud has a portable water pump which was brought into emergency use to do away with part of the "two or three feet of water in the cellar" at 7:56.

Origin of the fire was not determined yesterday.

House Group Tax Law Over-Haul To Start

Washington (AP) — A House committee sets out Tuesday on a long, complex overhaul of the nation's tax laws—with benefits for millions of working mothers on the first day's agenda.

Chairman Daniel Reed (R-N.Y.) of the House Ways and Means Committee said the study will continue for months, with almost every line of what he calls the present "hodge-podge" of tax laws coming up for review.

The initial aim is to examine the laws for clarity, simplicity and fairness—rewriting, deleting or adding to them as found necessary.

DPA Will Experiment With Medical Care Aid Instead Of Direct Payment Program

Harrisburg (AP) — The State Department of Public Assistance will inaugurate an experiment in Snyder County starting July 1 of aiding those on relief rolls to pay for medical care instead of the state paying the cost direct.

Mrs. Eleanor G. Evans, secretary of public assistance, said the present plan of the state paying bills of doctors, dentists and druggists "actually is socialized medicine."

If the Snyder County experiment proves successful, she said, in a weekend statement announcing the new plan, it will extend to the entire state.

Under the new plan, Mrs. Evans said, it was hoped to reduce relief costs "or at least stop the constant increase in cost."

Instead of doctors, dentists and druggists being paid by the state for medical and dental care of those on relief rolls $1 a month will be added to each relief check to pay for those services.

In chronic cases, where treatment is required for six months or more, relief recipients will receive an additional $6 a month.

Under the present system, relief recipients may visit physicians as necessary, with doctors getting $1.50 for an office visit, $2.50 for a home call, plus mileage on long trips.

Mrs. Evans said that relief medical care now is costing the state $4,800,000 for 214,000 persons on the state relief rolls, with an average of $75 per person, monthly, in 1952.

Mrs. Evans said there has been "general dissatisfaction" with the professions and relief recipients to the present plan.

The Snyder County experiment also includes a one-time $35 payment for child deliveries. Those on the blind pensions lists also will collect the monthly allowance.

Any statewide system that may be evolved from the Snyder County plan, she said, must survive four tests:

1. Keep government out of the medical profession as much as possible.

Hasty Action Not Practical Says Watkins

Washington (AP) — President Eisenhower may encounter some Senate opposition from both parties if he offers President Syngman Rhee of South Korea a mutual defense pact as an inducement to agree to a truce.

Rhee has called on the U. S. to sign such a pact immediately but Sen. Watkins R-Utah said any hasty action is "not practical." Watkins predicted the Senate would take a long time to consider such a pact.

"Before we get around to guaranteeing a lot of other peoples independence, we are going to have a fight," Watkins said. "There is certain to be some opposition."

Although he declined to say whether he would vote against a treaty of this nature, Watkins said he thinks the U. S. "has already got about as much as we can handle" in the way of world responsibilities.

Similarly, a Democratic member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who didn't want to be quoted by name, said he fears this country is stretching its strength too thinly around the globe. He said he hopes the President doesn't agree to Rhee's demand at this time.

This senator said he would oppose any defense agreement with an Asiatic continental nation which might involve future use of American troops.

Eisenhower said in a letter to Rhee last week that he was prepared "promptly" after the conclusion and acceptance of an armistice to negotiate a mutual defense treaty with South Korea.

But he reminded Rhee that the treaty could become effective only if approved by the Senate.

Since a treaty requires two-thirds approval of those voting, a relatively small number of senators might block ratification if they chose to fight it.

Ike Allocates $750,000 To Tornado Relief

Hanover, N. H. (AP) — President Eisenhower yesterday allocated three quarters of a million dollars for tornado and flood relief in three stricken areas.

Presidential Press Aide Murray Snyder described the allocations as preliminary and listed them as follows:

Massachusetts, whose Worcester area was devastated by a tornado Tuesday, $500,000; Michigan, where Flint and other communities were hit by tornadoes Monday, $125,000; and Iowa, struck recently by both tornado and flood, $100,000.

Eisenhower Strikes At 'Book Burning' In Fight With Communist Forces

Hanover, N. H. (AP) — President Eisenhower declared yesterday that only by knowing Communism can it be fought effectively, and he cautioned against joining "the book-burners" who would even bar knowledge of Communism from the libraries.

Speaking at Dartmouth College commencement exercises, the President appeared to be hitting at Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), who has been assailing the State Department for using books by Communist authors in its propaganda drive against the Reds.

In an informal talk to 563 graduates and an audience of about 10,000 others, the President said:

"Don't think you can cure something by hiding the evidence of it. You must have courage to look at these things and try to correct them."

"It isn't enough to say 'I love America' and to salute the flag and to cheer as it goes by."

"Don't be afraid to go to the library and read the books . . . That's how we will defeat Communism by knowing what it is. We've got to fight it by doing something better, and not just by hiding it."

Eisenhower said Americans have a right to have books on Communism available to students of Communism, and to have them "in places accessible to others."

Just before the President spoke, Lester B. Pearson, Canadian foreign secretary and president of the United Nations General Assembly, also had an indirect reference to McCarthy.

Pearson said that "voices raised in our midst, calculated to exaggerate the differences which arise between us," were another pit-fall the Atlantic treaty nations must avoid.

"Irresponsibility of this kind can undermine the mutual understanding on which our community rests," he said.

The citation read at the ceremonies as the President received his honorary degree said "No great captain ever gave to free men everywhere such confidence in the reality of their collective strength for the common defense of God's peace."

Budget Cutters Close To Reaching 10 Billion Goal

Washington, (AP) — With a big lift from President Eisenhower, congressional budget-cutters are within reaching distance of their goal of a 10 billion dollar slash in new appropriations proposed by former President Truman.

The target was set by Chairman Taber R-N.Y. of the House Appropriations Committee when Truman submitted his farewell budget to Congress last January, as required by law. At the time, many observers believed Taber had set his sights too high.

But with seven regular money bills already passed by the House and another cleared by Taber's committee for House action, it now looks as if the New Yorker wasn't being too optimistic.

The House already has, in the seven bills passed, chopped $1,800,000,000 from the Truman requests for new money for the fiscal year starting July 1. The money voted is 766 million dollars below the revised Eisenhower budget.

The major cuts are due in three big bills still to be considered.

If it follows, as it usually does, the recommendations of its appropriations committee, the House will chop $1,171,000,000 from the Truman fund requests for the Veterans' Administration, the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Atomic Energy Commission and the Selective Service System.

Inquest Will Deal With Bus Crash On Pike

Coroner Thomas J. Fritchey called the inquest to take testimony into the circumstances of the accident Friday.

Seoul, Monday, (AP) — Nearly 30,000 Communists smashed back Allied troops on the Central and Eastern Korean Fronts today and completely changed the truce line of demarcation being drawn at Pannunjom.

It was the biggest Red assault in nearly two years. Chinese made up most of the attacking forces, which totaled almost three divisions.

The hardest blows fell on the U. S. 3rd Infantry Division in the Iron Triangle hills and against Republic of Korea troops around Capitol Hill and Outpost Texas.

Mortgage Money Is Very Scarce

Washington, (AP) — Where's the new mortgage money that lenders were supposed to offer after the government boosted interest rates nearly six weeks ago? It hasn't shown up yet.

In fact, puzzled officials reported yesterday that 10 percent fewer veterans and 4 percent fewer non-G. I. home seekers have been able to arrange for government-insured or government-guaranteed mortgages than before the higher rates became effective.

The National Association of Home Builders, which will send witnesses before the committees, has reported local mortgage markets confused and uncertain, lenders reluctant to make firm commitments, and home-buyers "puzzled and disappointed."

The builders, who plugged for higher interest rates in expectation they would stimulate building, will propose a new cure: they want lower FHA down-payments.

A spokesman for NAHB said builders assume that "the credit situation will ease eventually, because the money will have to be invested somewhere." But he agreed with the forecast of Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) that, unless the money market does loosen, home-building will slump by 250,000 houses from the present rate of more than a million starts a year.

Exchange Rehearsals Are Started

Munsan, Monday (AP) — A Korean armistice appeared so near today that officers assigned to vital truce jobs were alerted and Allied soldiers were warned against mistaking a cease-fire for war's end.

The U. N. field commander, Lt. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, issued an unusual radio caution to his multi-national army not to be swept up with thoughts of going home and get caught off guard. He said "the possibility of an armistice has increased to the point that we must consider what a signing would mean to the Eighth Army."

The U. N. base camp in Munsan buzzed with activity. Soldiers and medics were told to start prisoner exchange rehearsals. Officers who will serve on the military armistice commission were told to get ready to take over their new jobs.

Peiping's Red Radio said liaison officers as well as staff officers were meeting today at Pannunjom "to work out the last administrative details prior to the signing of the armistice agreement."

The first staff officer session today was set for 11 a. m., 9 p. m., Sunday (EST).

The staff officers are believed to be working on prisoner exchange and the mapping of a cease-fire line. Peiping Radio said liaison officers would meet at 9:30 a. m. to work on various administrative matters.

The liaison officers met—as Peiping said they would—but the U. N. Command would give no details. The session lasted 19 minutes. The officers did not set a date for a future meeting.

President Syngman Rhee called off, at least for the moment, the anti-truce demonstrations which had raged five days in the streets of Korean cities. Instead, 1,000 men and women from 160 churches prayed in a Seoul park lest the allies "surrender to the Godless Communist aggressors."

Activities of the Allied Command suggested confidence this opposition would not upset a truce.

Taylor Lashes Party Laxity In Harrisburg

Harrisburg, (AP) — The general assembly's tax deadlock shifts to the state Senate this week with possibilities of developments on two levels.

They involve consideration of a six mill tax on gross receipts of gas companies and an additional one per cent increase in the five per cent corporate net income tax.

The two levies, if finally adopted, would produce an estimated 62 million dollars for a two year period, 12 millions from the gas receipts tax and 50 millions from the corporate income tax.

The Senate will take up alone today the problem of balancing the commonwealth's $1,400,000,000 budget since the House is in recess until June 22.

The House session last week saw a roll-call defeat of a general sales tax and a walkout the next day by most of the representatives on a hedge-podge package of other levies, preventing a vote on them. The representatives just got up and went home, individually and in small groups.

Meanwhile, Sen. M. Harvey Taylor, Republican State Chairman and President Pro Tempore of the Senate, tried to re-unite splinter factions of the GOP.

"It's high time the members of the Legislature put the party above self," Taylor said. "Is the party to be destroyed because of people sparring for position?"

All Neutrals To Serve On POW Board

Tokyo, (AP) — Peiping radio said last night that India, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Switzerland, and Poland have "formally" informed the Chinese Communist government that they will serve on the neutral commission to supervise prisoner-of-war repatriation in Korea.

Barrett Appreciation Week Hails Thompson

Made Decision To Take Over Hotel In 1907

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of three articles dealing with Charles N. Thompson, for years, building manager of Buck Hill, the 1903 recipient of the Barrett Appreciation Award. This is Appreciation Week in Barrett Township when the community pauses to pay tribute to a distinguished citizen. Award will be made at a banquet in The Inn, Buck Hill Falls Wednesday night.)

The sun was bright, with just a trace of Spring warmth in it, that March morning in 1907, and the young man who stood on the porch of The Inn at Buck Hill Falls that day breathed in the invigorating Pocono air, and felt the stirring of a challenge within him. It had been a Winter of much snow, and just yesterday there had been a few inches of downy white added to the year's accumulation. The slope before him was dotted with fir trees of varying species, dominated by giant hemlocks, and all bent gracefully under the weight of the clinging snow. Laurel and rhododendron bushes, in their dark Winter green, were almost hidden, while oaks and locusts stood starkly bare against the white background. Never had he seen anything so match it, and he heard a faint voice within him seemed to call to him that here was the place and this was the time for him to begin a long and happy way of life.

The young man was not a poet or a dreamer. Rather, his life up to that time had been practical in the extreme, almost to the point of hardness. Leaving school at the age of fourteen, he had left his birthplace in Hoekessin, Delaware, to take a job as clerk in a country store in Chester County, Pennsylvania. His natural aptitude for business kept him advancing, and, although his formal education had ceased, he continued to educate himself in ways that would benefit him in business. Every detail of business intrigued him, and he studied unceasingly. His abilities came to the attention of some of the Managers of the George School in Bucks County, and at the age of twenty-one he was offered, and accepted, the position of treasurer and superintendent of that well-known Friends' educational institution.

Now, a few years later, having made his work at the School into a pattern that required only a portion of his time, he had entered the bond business in Philadelphia, and was financially successful. Until he had thrived at the Pocono landscape in Winter, it had never occurred to him that he would do else than continue in his routine and carefully ordered way of life in George School and the Philadelphia financial district.

A few months previously, the then president of the Buck Hill Fall Company, the late Charles F. Jenkins, had suggested to this progressive young man that he would be of value to Buck Hill if he would leave George School and his Philadelphia contacts, and become Superintendent of the Company. The picture was well and attractively painted, and the program carefully outlined, but it had been a matter of no special interest to the one to whom it was offered. In the intervening months, the offer had been repeated, and, when the young man found himself scheduled to go to Scranton on a business trip, he agreed to stop off at Cresco on his way home, and look at The Inn and the settlement which was being built.

So here he was, seeing the beauty of one of the loveliest spots in the Poconos, and at its Winter-best. As he stood there, George School became a closed chapter in his book, and the Philadelphia business world something to be held at arm's length. There he stood, trying to so deeply impress the scene before him on the film of his mind that he would always remember that first view. He turned finally and went back to the sleigh that had brought him over the almost trackless roads to Buck Hill, and as he tucked the robes around him, and the driver started for the village below, he formed a resolve to accept the offer being held out to him, even though it meant a severe financial sacrifice for him at the time. He had an uncanny sense of true values. In the scale-balance of his judgment, he weighed into one pan his current financial success with its life in the city and suburbs, and into the other pan of the scale he placed the picture he had just seen and the visions that were already dancing in his head for the development of a special type of resort. The latter heavily outweighed the former.

So Charles Norman Thompson came to Buck Hill in 1907 to be its superintendent. It required a few weeks to wind up his local affairs, but on the first of May he reported on the job.

A little picture, by way of contrast, may help us to visualize what a change this was in his life. Philadelphia in that year—almost a half-century ago—had also experienced heavy snows, but the dirt and grime of the city changed its whiteness into a drab and dingy covering of ice or melting slush in the streets, and the little plots that served as yards to the row after row of houses. Traffic through the icy slush was a snarl of mess of heavy drays and light one-or-two-horse delivery wagons, into which carriages of the well-to-do wove their way over streets paved with cobblestones to give the horses a better footing, and the only mechanically driven traffic was the electric trolley cars. In Summer months, occasionally a gasoline-driven car would tread its way through the traffic, or some hardy soul would appear in an electric runabout, but at the first sign of snow, these were stored for the Winter. Horses accounted for more than 90% of the traffic, and enormous loads were drawn through the streets at a snail's pace.

Such was the Philadelphia Charles Thompson had left two days before, and from which he was now planning to sever his connections. As for George School, some twenty-odd miles from the center of the city, reached by train with commuter service on the Reading Railroad, no one even dreamed that it would come within the orbit of the growing suburbs of the city. In the built-up sections of the town, the roads were usually macadamized, but elsewhere they were plain, dirt roads. Motor cars proceeded to such an out of the way place only at the hands of the venturesome, and horses were considered to be lacking in proper spirit if they did not rear up on their hind legs at the sight and sound of one of these clattering new mechanical contraptions.

From these scenes, Charles Thompson moved to a strictly rural, mountain setting. That change from one scene to another was drastic, does not seem to have entered Mr. Thompson's mind. He accepted it as a challenge to be met with a vision that dreamed of the present day development of the area.

The Poconos had been gaining attention for some years previous to this, as a place where healthful summers could be spent, and there were several "summer boarding houses" that catered to the summer trade. Hunters and fishermen also came on trips during their seasons. At the turn of the century, Howard M. Jenkins, his son, Charles F., and others had seen the potential value of a quiet and thoroughly high-class summer hotel, to meet the requirements of Philadelphians and others who would like to spend their summers in the Poconos, and, having organized the Buck Hill Fall Company, had secured the first acreage of their present large holding, and had proceeded to erect an Inn of twenty rooms, which in the course of seven years following had been increased to a building with fifty or more guest rooms.

with all other facilities of a first-class summer hotel. In addition, lots had been sold in the area, on which cottages had been erected, the report for 1907 showing a total of sixty-six built and occupied for the summer, with two more being built.

This was the plant over which Mr. Thompson was to become superintendent, as he came on the job, bright and early you may be sure, on May day 1907. For the next forty and more years, the life story of Charles Thompson was so closely intertwined with the developing saga of Buck Hill, that it is impossible to relate one without telling much of the other.

We have sketched the size of the change in the life of Charles Thompson that came as a result of his decision to come to Buck Hill. An even greater change awaited him within the first year. A bachelor when he accepted the post, he had laughingly said to a friend in Philadelphia that he would propose to and marry the first young lady he met in his new location. Upon arrival here, he went to live at the Brewer Cottage, now "The Woodside," then, as now, under the management of John F. Henry. The Inn did not open until just before Decoration Day.

Coming in from a day's outdoor work one evening, he met a Miss Martha Packer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Packer of Trenton, New Jersey, the family being one of their frequent visitors to the Poconos, where they were having a cottage built in the Buck Hill settlement. By the age-old way of a man with a maid, and not because of his neo-prophetic utterance, Charles Thompson courted and won this first young lady he met in the Poconos, and they were married in a quiet Quaker ceremony at the cottage of the bride's parents in the Spring of 1908. This is believed to have been the first wedding in the Buck Hill settlement. From this marriage, two children were born, a

For The Record

—By James Burnham

THE UNITED NATIONS LOBBY

that he called the Hiss trial "a new Dreyfus case." One of its five Vice Presidents is that same Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to the Soviet Union, whose book, "Mission to Moscow" was notable for its defense of the Soviet rulers and the purge trials.

The most active campaigner for the group is the retired but tireless Eleanor Roosevelt, who in a recent fund-raising letter remarks, "I am devoting myself in every way to this work."

At the moment Mrs. Roosevelt and her associates are spearheading a drive to re-sell the American public on the Hiss trial.

The U. N. lobbyists claim that the U. N. is "the last and best hope for peace." That is like a soldier believing that a cotton T-shirt is bullet-proof armor.

Whenever and wherever the Communists have felt like fighting in Greece, Korea, Malaya, Indochina, the Philippines—they have paid about as much attention to the U. N. as a tractor to an anglerworm.

Where they have been resisted, it has never been by the U. N. (of which the Reds are honored members) but only by one of the free nations acting on its own or with its close allies; Greece and the U. S. in Greece; Britain in Malaya; France and Viet Nam in Indochina; loyal constabulary and troops in the Philippines; a coalition under U. S. initiative and leadership in Korea.

During these years since Alger Hiss administered as Secretary the founding U. N. Conference, the outbreak of unlimited world war has been prevented not by the endless talk of U. N. meetings but by the strategic air force and nuclear weapons of the U. S. The lobbyists warn that the U. S. would be alone and "isolated" if the United Nations cracked up.

No threat could be more empty. The interests that have made a nation friendly or hostile to the U. S. neither began nor ended with the U. N., and will operate tomorrow whether the U. N. flourishes or declines.

British soldiers fight alongside ours in Korea, and Indian soldiers don't. Soviet soldiers fight against ours, and the Soviet Union is also a U. N. member.

If the U. N. collapsed into the East River tomorrow, we would be neither more nor less isolated than we are today. Our friends would still be our friends, our enemies our enemies, and the in-betweens would still be between.

There is even some reason to think that the U. N. makes us more rather than less isolated. "Bloc" of delegates, like the Arab and Indian blocs, shape up in the U. N.

This makes it difficult for us to have normal relations with the individual countries represented in the blocs. As members of blocs, all the nations are putting each other on the spot.

They cannot compromise issues without risking a public loss of face. Diplomacy is turned into a kind of blackmail by propaganda. When their front-line arguments are pierced, the U. N. publicists fall back on the "auxiliary agencies," in particular the World Health Organization and the World Bank. It is a fact that these two have fairly good if modest records.

But both could perfectly well exist independently of the U. N. as a whole. And, a point, never mentioned by the publicists—the Soviet Union and her satellites do not belong to either the World Health Organization or the World Bank.

Come to think of it, the U. N. might be able to profit by that example. Once Communist governments are out, it might be possible to get somewhere. After all, a police force can hardly be expected to stop crime if the chief gangsters have desks in the Commissioner's office.

Wholesale Gas Price Is Up Three-Fourths Of Cent Today

Esso Makes Increase; Others Later

Wholesale price of Esso gasoline rises about three-quarters of a cent a gallon here today.

Other companies were expected to follow suit.

And it was believed that the boost would drag retail prices up about the same amount.

The advance in Esso's price takes place throughout Pennsylvania. The increase will be in varying amounts but will average three-quarters of a cent, said J. F. Dixon, Philadelphia division manager.

Dixon said the old price schedule has been in effect since mid-1950. Since then there have been "substantial increases" in wages and salaries and transportation and other costs, he said. He also said top-quality gasoline has been in "tight supply."

Gasoline prices generally have advanced in the primary markets in the U. S. Gulf area recently. Last week they rose also throughout New York and New England.

The old schedule of Esso prices was 15.3 cents a gallon plus five cents State tax and two cents Federal tax; total, 22.3 cents for "regular" gasoline. The rate was 23.8 cents a gallon for "premium" gas.

New tank wagon rates will be 23.05 cents for "regular" and 24.25 cents for "premium."

Walter S. Peeney, manager of Gulf Oil in Monroe County and an official of the petroleum dealers' association here, said he had not received notice of a wholesale price rise for Gulf, and did not think other dealers had yet either.

But Esso often gets its notices a day or so ahead, Peeney said. Very likely the other companies will follow suit with about the same rise.

Such a rise has been expected by oil dealers since the boost in New England and New York, Peeney said.

Wholesalers have nothing to do with the price set by their retail customers, but Peeney thought it probable that retail prices would reflect the same three-quarter cent rise.

By this reckoning, the motorist who drives up to a gas pump and says "fill 'er up" will have to pay about 28.25 cents a gallon for "regular" and around 31.25 for "premium" gas when the retail price goes up.

Six Injured, None Serious, In Collision

Six were injured yesterday in a two-car collision at 6:25 p.m. at Mount Pocono.

Injuries were reported not serious, and all the injured were treated by Dr. E. O. Hendrick, Mount Pocono.

State police in the borough said five of the injured were in a car driven by William A. McHardy, 52, Newark, N. J., who attempted to pass a car while driving south.

While making the attempt, McHardy was forced against the divider on Route 611 and his car went out of control, police said. The vehicle spun around and stopped in the middle of the south-bound traffic lane.

A car operated by Andrew V. Johnson Jr., 18, Trenton, N. J., struck the stopped car, police said. Injured in the Johnson car was the driver's father, aged 50. He sustained leg bruises and cuts.

Others injured: McHardy, forehead cuts and possible rib fractures; his wife, 43, scalp, left leg and chest cuts and bruises; daughter Josephine, 15, right leg cuts; Mrs. Jean Celuski, 21, nose cuts; her daughter, aged three months, a head bruise.

Damages were estimated as $300 to the Johnson car and $250 to the McHardy auto.

23 Persons Rescued After Boat Explodes
Hull, Mass. (AP) — Twenty-three persons were rescued yesterday by the Coast Guard and police boats after a 35-foot chartered fishing boat caught fire and exploded about 1,000 feet off the Pemberton Yacht Club.

All jumped to safety before the craft exploded. Sixteen were picked up by Coast Guard craft and seven by the police boat Crowley. Three required treatment by a physician for shock and immersion.

Mt. Everest Climbers Are Back In Nepal

Katmandu, Nepal (AP) — Col. John Hunt, leader of the British expedition that conquered Mt. Everest May 29, arrived here Saturday night and reported his party had found no trace of two daring Britons who disappeared near the icy summit of the world's highest mountain in 1924.

Accompanied by two other members of his successful 16-man expedition, Hunt chucked with delight at seeing the bright electric lights of this Nepalese capital after weeks spent in numbing cold on the tortuous slopes of Everest, whose conquest earned him a knighthood from Queen Elizabeth II.

Turning to his fellow adventurers—Thomas Bourdillon and Alfred Gregory—Hunt said: "Boys, how about seeing a motion picture?" Hunt, 42, told newsmen all members of his party are returning in good health and without injury. The two men who made the final assault and reached Everest's 29,002-foot peak—New Zealander Edmund Hillary and Nepalese guide Tensing Bhutia—are expected here today or tomorrow.

As an extra safety measure Saturday night, Acme Hose began posting 24-hour guard at the fire house on S. Courtland St. The guard system will be maintained until the shorted alarm is repaired, according to Abel.

Tar Fire Is Put Out By Gap Firemen

Delaware Water Gap firemen put out a tar fire near the borough cemetery at 6 p.m. yesterday.

Alarm was turned in by H. E. Bowers. Firemen said the blaze was caused by sparks from a pile of burning rubbish nearby.

The sparks apparently ignited a pile of hardened tar lying in corrugated pipe near a cement culvert. Location of the fire was given as "between the former B and K restaurant and the cemetery."

Using a booster pump, firemen quickly put out the blazing tar. No known damage was caused.

Scotchlite Sheetting Is Widely Used

Have you ever noticed the many reflective signs that line the highways—the kind which seem to stab through the darkness with vivid, glowing colors?

The reason behind this sparkling nighttime brilliance is "SCOTCH-LITE," sold in this area by Paint Service Center, 517 Main St., the authorized distributor in this locality.

Motorists can't fail to see this brilliant reflection on roads at night. Light rays from car headlights are at eye level to the driver and other passengers—and are returned straight back to them from equipment and signs reflectorized with "Scotchlite."

Signs made of this brilliant material have a greater visibility both day and night.

Its uses are many. It can be used on mailboxes, trailers, cars, trucks, name sign markers, bicycles, tavern, restaurant and motel signs, billboards and as dock markers.

Miss Eva F. Hess Becomes Bride Of Norman A. Gebauer In Presbyterian Church

The front of the sanctuary at the First Presbyterian Church, Stroudsburg, was banked with greens and blossoming laurel and lighted by candles in tall candelabra for the 4 o'clock wedding Saturday of Miss Eva Frederike Hess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clinton Hess, of 43 Broad St., Stroudsburg, to Norman Albert Gebauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter John Gebauer, of 150 Harris Hill Road, Williamsville, N. Y.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Ernest T. Campbell. The musical setting for the wedding was provided by Vernon C. Imb, organist. The wedding procession entered through an aisle flanked by pew bouquets of laurel and pink roses, while the altar bouquet was of white gladioli, snapdragons and pink roses.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin, with a fitted bodice, sculptured neckline, and long pointed sleeves. The full skirt ended in a full train. She carried a cascade bouquet of ivory Johanna Hill roses. Her fingertip veil fell from a shell cap of white satin, illusion, and seed pearls.

Miss Virginia M. Hess, who was her sister's maid-of-honor, wore a gown of iridescent pink antique tulle with a pointed neckline, shirred cap sleeves, and a bouffant ankle-length skirt. She wore a matching shell cap trimmed with seed pearls and matching shoes and gauntlets. She carried a cascade bouquet of garnet roses.

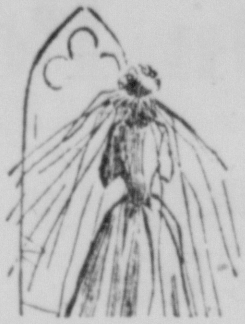

The four bridesmaids were Miss Carol M. Gebauer, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Joan P. Misset, of Ogdensburg, N. Y.; Miss June E. Beardmore, of Schenectady, N. Y.; and Mrs. Richard Soby of Edin, N. Y.

They all wore dresses similar to the maid of honor, but of iridescent silver antique tulle with matching shell caps, shoes and gauntlets. Their cascade bouquets were of pink Mrs. Finch roses.

Carl E. Love, of Cleveland, Ohio, was best man and the ushers were Christian Rugh of Rochester, N. Y.; William Hulbert, of Springville, N. Y.; Robert Fogelin, of Congers, N. Y.; and Joseph Phillips, of Voorheesville, N. Y.

The bride's mother wore a dress of rose chiffon, with a matching hat composed of flowers and brilliants, and a corsage of white orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of navy blue sheer with a large matching hat and white accessories. Her corsage was also of white spray orchids.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 150 guests was held at the Penn-Stroud ballroom, which was decorated with pink and white flowers, rhododendron and laurel. Tommy Cullins orchestra furnished

Just Between Us —By Bobby Westbrook

The candles burning on wedding altars made glowing warmth in a cold dull day, and that warmth seemed to spread among the wedding guests. Weddings are wonderful times for bringing home the friends you haven't seen for ages, of uniting again families separated by college terms and the gulf of separate activities.

And everytime you think to yourself, "Now I've seen every variation in a wedding," along comes something new. As when Eva Hess and Norman Gebauer exchanged their wedding vows, not repeating the words after the minister but saying them from memory.

There was a simplicity and a sincerity about it that seemed to grip everyone. But then every wedding has its poignant moments. After a weekend so filled with sentiment, soft music and sweet flowers, it's going to be a change to buckle down to housework, picnics and regular meetings.

Though Children's Day was a change, too. Flowers, sweet music and sentiment, there, too, but on the lighter side. But let no man think the laughter that sweeps a congregation as a little girl stands and twists her organically skirt into a knot as she speaks, or as the little boy waves wildly at his parents in the back, is irreverent.

Rather, there is a mingling of tenderness, delight, and warm-hearted concern that is reverent beyond formal prayer.

Cupid may be a pudgy, curly haired sprite with wings, and a bow and arrow—but his favorite handmaidens are our Wyckoff saleswomen who keep on track of the needs, wishes and whims of the young women he has singled out as brides. It isn't surprising at all to see one of our girls on the telephone these days, and hear her say "Miss Blank? This is Wyckoff's calling. I have a customer who is interested in knowing whether you prefer linen or lace tablecloths" . . . or perhaps, "Someone is inquiring about the color scheme of your bedroom."

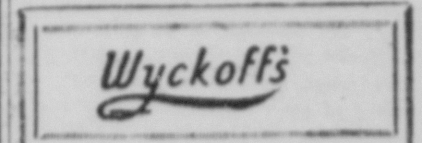

The bride-elect is usually flattered beyond all telling, and only too pleased to admit that her choice is linen; she'd just love one of the new crinkle bedspreads with yellow rosebuds on a white background, and her kitchen is going to be yellow and blue, but she has everything for that department except an electric coffee maker.

In addition to these calls, which any saleswoman will gladly place on request, practically every department head is as full of information as an encyclopedia . . . if the customer only takes the time to inquire, Mary Hitesman can tell you in a moment that one bride has selected Franciscan ware in this or that pattern, and that she has three starter sets, the covered butter dish, salad plates, casserole, and vegetable dishes, but still lacks the cream and sugar set, salt and peppers, and chop platter. Or that another bride is buying Revere ware and has everything but the large skillet. And the girls in the gift department are sure to remember that the same young lady has everything in aluminum, but would love to have a copper chafing dish, a particular cookie jar, or a milk glass salad set.

All of this is a splendid reason for selecting one's gifts at Wyckoff's. You see, when an engaged girl begins thinking about her very own home, with a particular kind of blanket, china, glassware, or silverware, she comes to Wyckoff's. And because everyone is really interested in her and that home-to-be, it isn't long before we have a fairly good idea as to her plans. You'll never get a half-hearted gift "shrug-geston" at Wyckoff's. Nor a casual suggestion either. We take brides seriously. As a result, Wyckoff customers are never "wedding guessers". They are the guests who had the right answers when their "presents" was requested!

GETTING AROUND

Everyone at Wyckoff's was much perturbed Saturday by what, it is feared may be a new trend. Crowding around the big windows in our electrical appliance shop, the upstairs offices, and the main door, the store family waited patiently while guests exited from the Presbyterian church. But we never did see Eva Hess as a bride—and the disappointment was keen. It was only by hearsay that the wedding details buzzed over the store grapevine, as guests stopped by to shop . . . It was a busy grapevine Saturday, believe me, with Tommy Rinehart proudly announcing himself as a grandfather, thanks to his son, Rev. Graham Rinehart, and the former Thelma Acker. The new arrival is a little minister—or maybe a future president!

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

One of the main topics of business at the monthly meeting of the Pocono Mountains Baseball League tonight will be a discussion of the ball that is currently being used in the circuit. Many teams in the circuit are reportedly very displeased with the ball now being used and would like very much to return to the ball that was used in the circuit last season. The complaints have been so loud and long that Clinton Getz, league president, assigned Harry Janson, vice president, and John Wernett, secretary, to examine the ball at three games yesterday.

Janson and Getz reportedly found the ball in use very inferior to the one that was used in the circuit last season. The twosome cut open one ball and found it very soft and certainly not up to par as far as good baseballs are concerned. The ball and rescheduling of postponed games will undoubtedly take up the entire meeting tonight at the Bartonville Hotel. The games visited by Janson and Wernett yesterday were Ananokim and Lake Harmony; Tannersville and Saylorsburg; and Kunkletown and Barrett.

Joe Shea, former star football tackle at East Stroudsburg High school, was home over the weekend. Joe reports that the entry exam for West Point was really tough and expects to find out the results when he reports back early this week. Shea, one of the spectators at yesterday's swimming meet at Shawnee, really has his heart set on entering West Point. Al Adelmann, former three letter athlete at Stroudsburg High, was also a spectator at the Shawnee swimming meet, as was Mike Palmisano, another Eastburg grid star.

Boys interested in attempting to land a berth in professional baseball have a golden opportunity during the coming week. The New York Yankees will present a two-day diamond school at Bangor Memorial Park on Wednesday and Thursday, while the Phillies will operate a three-day school at Allentown's Irving St. Playground on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the coming week. Many of the game's greatest players today began their careers by attending baseball schools and it could happen to a youngster in this area.

Lloyd "Sonny" Woodling, former baseball and basketball star at Pocono High and a pitcher for the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College baseball team, is now doing his pitching with Union City, Tenn., of the class "D" Kitty League. Woodling pitched for this same Brooklyn Dodger farm club last season. Lloyd reported to Hornell, of the class "D" Pony League, after leaving college last month, but upon his arrival in the New York town found that he was the 17th pitcher on the roster. Woodling decided to return to Union City.

The ESSTC student made one relief appearance with Union City as of last week. The reports making the rounds at the present time are that both the St. Louis Cardinals and St. Louis Browns were dickered with Bill Shires before the latter signed with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Harold Jacobson opened on the mound against Portland yesterday despite the fact that the Pocono A. C. pitcher suffered an eye injury on Friday when struck with a fragment of rock while at work on the bridge in Delaware Water Gap.

Bill "Lefty" Herring, an ESSTC student, is having a fine year in the Pocono Mountains Association this summer thus far. The Newfoundland first sacker singled his first two times yesterday against Mount Cobb to stretch his consecutive hit streak to seven. Herring went five-for-five in the last trip into battle prior to yesterday. "Buck" Hutchins, Newfoundland catcher, is still one of the best receivers in the area as he demonstrated yesterday by throwing out four runners attempting to steal second base. Newfoundland is currently boasting a record of four wins and no setbacks.

For those interested it might be good to point out that the PIAA examination for football officials will be given on September 24, while basketball official hopefuls may take their exam on November 12. PIAA basketball exams will be given prospective umpires on February 4. Whitehall Junior High school is still attempting to fill that football date of either November 6 or 7. Contact Samuel L. Nevins if interested. Don Manning, former ESSTC basketball star, and a youthful cage coach with huge success, received special mention along with his team in the most recent edition of the Pa'blite, the PIAA official publication.

A new PIAA basketball officiating manual will be published in 1954. The Little Bigger League of the Stroudsburgs is going to play all games possible at Gordon Griffiths field, but there will be contests that will have to be played on other diamonds in the area because of travel and the number of games. Don't forget the Stroudsburg Little League opens its 1953 season tomorrow, at the circuit's official field. There will be a parade beginning at the Penn. Stroud.

Portland Doubles Final Count On Pocono A.C., 10-5

Apollos Run Wild In Early Innings

Pocono A. C. went down to its second straight defeat in the Blue Mountain League yesterday by bowing to Portland, 10-5, at East Stroudsburg Playground. The loss dropped the Monroe County club into fourth place in the standings.

Portland broke a 2-2 deadlock with four runs in the second, three in the third and one in the fourth, to win without strain.

Pocono A. C. tried to come back in the late stages, but the charges of Manager Bill Frear couldn't make the grade, even with a three-run rally in the seventh frame.

The home team scored twice in the first when Harold Freeman singled, stole second and held the base as Bob Mellman walked. John "Juice" Arnet singled Freeman home and sent Mellman to third.

Arnet and Mellman worked the double steal, with the latter crossing the plate on the play. Redge Flanagan opened the seventh with a double. Hobart "Hobie" Hutchins flied out. Tom Foley went out on a grounder, but Flanagan took third. Freeman walked and stole second. Carson Deffenbaugh singled both Flanagan and Freeman home and Deffenbaugh took second on the play to the plate from where he scored on a single by Mellman.

Newfoundland Takes Measure Of Mount Cobb

Newfoundland—The Newfoundland Bears maintained their position on top of the heap in the Pocono Mountains Association yesterday with an 11-2 decision over Mount Cobb, here on the winning club's home field.

The game was originally scheduled to be played at Mount Cobb, but the field in that locality was too wet for play and the contest was shifted to the home terrain of the Bears.

Newfoundland broke the scoring ice bright and early with a single run in the first and then put the game on ice with four markers in the top of the third. Two more markers in the fifth, one in the seventh and three in the eighth wound up the winning scoring for the day.

Two Hits

Walter "Zeke" Voeste, veteran right handed pitcher, hurled a two-hit shutout for eight innings, before Mount Cobb was able to account for two runs and three hits in the home half of the ninth.

John Zawicki homered in the last frame for Mount Cobb, with one mate on base.

Bill "Lefty" Herring singled in his first two trips to the plate to make it seven straight hits, thanks to a five-for-five showing in a recent contest. "Buck" Hutchesin, Newfoundland catcher, threw four Mount Cobb runners out at second base.

Martins Creek Blanks Roseto On Three Hits

Martins Creek Martins Creek, one of the most improved teams in the Blue Mountain League, continued its drive toward the top here yesterday with a 2-0 victory over Roseto, as 300 fans watched a pitching duel between Jack Weiss and "Doc" Schiavone, a pair of veteran moundmen.

Weiss, a 35-year-old right hander, stopped Roseto cold with a trio of harmless singles to register his initial shutout of the present campaign.

Martins Creek backed up the splendid pitching of Weiss with a nine hit attack, as each team played errorless ball.

Home Run—Carl Bethman accounted for what proved to be the winning run in the second when the veteran third baseman lashed out a 250-foot home run with the bases empty.

The home club added an insurance marker in the fourth when Manager Olympic Pascholi and Bill Goldworth connected for successive doubles.

Goldworth and Bethman were the entire batting show for the day, banging out three and two safeties, respectively.

Dodgers Drop To Second

Brooklyn, (AP) Ralph Kiner's grand slam home run with two out in the ninth inning gave the Chicago Cubs a 6-6 second game tie with Brooklyn after the Dodgers had won the opener, 6-3, yesterday. The second game was halted after nine innings because of darkness.

The tie dropped the Dodgers out of a first place deadlock with Milwaukee's Braves, who took a half game lead by sweeping a doubleheader from Pittsburgh.

The Dodgers led 6-2 going into the final inning of the nightcap with Carl Erskine, who relieved Clem Labine at the start of the sixth, wild and unsteady but lucky to escape unscathed in three previous frames.

One Out—He had one out in the final stanza when Carl Sawatski, the third Chicago catcher in this weird contest, singled to right, George Metkovich, batting for Sheldon Jones, drew a pass. Frank Baumholtz beat out a slow roller towards third to fill the bases.

West End averted a shutout by the youthful right hander when the visiting club pushed two runs into paydirt in the sixth.

Scoring—Meanwhile Bushkill had wrapped up the game with three more markers in the fifth and a singleton in the sixth.

Ray O'Melko, with three hits in four trips to the plate, led the winning offense, while Bob Burkett paced the West End attack with two safeties in four times at bat.

A total of eight errors were committed, five by Bushkill and three by West End A.C.

Tomatoes Need Extra Plant Food During Rainy Weather

Prune Lilac Flower Heads

By George Abraham

When rainfall is plentiful, nitrogen, potash and other essential plant foods may leach or seep out of the soil, especially on sandy loam soils. That means you should boost your tomatoes along with extra plant food.

Some gardeners apply chemical fertilizers at time of planting; this practice works if you use lots of caution, but we prefer to side-dress the plants two to four weeks after planting. Scatter some 5-10-15 or similar analysis around each plant. Or, if your plants are yellowish, mix up a handful of this, or nitrate of soda, to 10 quarts of water and apply as a "booster."

For the small home garden, here's an idea that might help you to tomatoes along during a mid-summer drought. Take empty tin cans, punch holes in the bottom and set one in the earth on each side of the plant. When you water your tomatoes, simply fill the cans and allow the water to drip slowly into the earth where it nourishes the roots. This is much better than pouring water around the plant where much of it is lost due to evaporation. You can also scatter a little plant food in the can before applying water. The cans will help you produce high yields and tomatoes with less cracks in them.

Pruning Lilacs: Removing the old flower heads on lilacs is a matter of improving the appearance of the shrubs. In cutting them off be very careful not to cut off next year's flowers. The buds for 1954's flowers are only an inch or so below this season's blooms.

Flower buds for 1954 blooms begin very early—about the time the petals start to fall. You can tell where the buds are, so just cut above them to insure a big crop next year.

Toadstools: Heavy rains have been responsible in part for the appearance of toadstools in lawns. Toadstools indicate presence of humus, often a decayed root, etc. Carefully remove toadstool heads and burn. Each head is capable of discharging millions of spores.

Then drench the area with a mixture of copper sulfate or bordeaux. Apply with a sprinkling can. Copper compound will kill the fungus and two or three applications are usually enough to clean up the infestation.

Now's a Good Time To: Cut off iris and peony blooms soon after they fade. Do not remove foliage. If your perennial border lacks bloom, use a few annuals as fillers.

It's been a bad year for dahlias in storage. If yours shriveled, soak them in water for several hours. If your tulips had "fire-blight" in them, dig up the diseased ones and burn. After foliage dies down, dig up and replant others in new spot.

Life With Mother Is Given Humanity By Billie Burke

By Leonard Randolph

Mountainhome—The further misadventures of the Day family are now on view at Pocono Playhouse.

After a preliminary bout with Mr. Day in "Life with Father," authors Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse turned their attention to Vinnie, the mother of the Day's red-headed brood.

"Father" lasted for nearly eight years on Broadway. "Life with Mother," the sequel, did not fare so well. Just exactly why this should be the case, this reviewer will not venture to say.

"Mother" is at least twice as human and three times as funny as her husband. Since most of the time on stage in "Life with Mother" is spent with Vinnie there's more humanity and less damnation.

As it is now staged at the Playhouse the comedy is vastly improved by a fine performance from its leading lady, Billie Burke. Miss Burke has been in show business for many years. She is an accomplished comedienne and a charming, attractive woman.

There are other good performances by lesser members of the cast. Bobby Alford has one highly amusing burlesque scene during which he recites a Browning poem to the accompaniment of an endless harangue by "Father" and a visiting cousin. Alan Snapper, Ernest Parmentier and James Hickman fill the roles of the remaining Day sons with apparent relish.

Like the Lindsay-Crouse version of "Father," nearly all the smaller roles are brief caricatures of human beings. They are given little chance to widen into full-length portraits. Frances Greet, Tony Dowling, Ruth Hammond, Jean Stapleton, David Morrison and

Billie Burke as "Vinnie" with Harry Bannister as "Father Day" in the comedy "Life With Mother."
